The Brown Hotel to Add Sunday Tea
to the Classical Hour of Piano with Ms. Nada Loutfi

LOUISVILLE, KY (February 15, 2010) – The Brown Hotel invites classical music lovers to enjoy Sunday Tea in the Grand Lobby beginning February 28. A weekly tradition at The Brown Hotel, the Sunday Classical Hour is free to the public from 4:00 to 5:00 pm and features Ms. Nada Loutfi playing the music of the greatest piano composers.

Ms. Loutfi is a native of Beirut, Lebanon, and a heralded pianist in her homeland. She is the founder of the Purely Piano series and has been a featured soloist of The Louisville Orchestra's MasterWorks Series and plays internationally.

Beginning Sunday, February 28 and available every Sunday, a special prix fixe tea menu will be presented to accompany the beautiful music. The Brown Hotel Executive Chef Laurent Géoli has created a delicious tea menu featuring a large selection of gourmet tartlets, scones, finger sandwiches and fine tea served in the Grand Lobby. The cost is $15 per person plus 6% sales tax and 20% gratuity. The Sunday tea seating is at 3:30 pm. Advance reservations for the tea are required, and may be made by calling (502) 583-1234 ext. 7166.

“The Grand Lobby is a magnificent setting to enjoy classical music,” said Brown Hotel assistant general manager Guy Genoud. “We are thrilled to add a lovely afternoon tea to this popular weekly event.”
